In the U.S. market, the model was sold as the Penton 125 Six Days. In 1973, a Sachs engine was installed in the GS 125, and our engine is still brand-new. The frame of this model was made of chromium-molybdenum steel. John Penton was involved in the development of the GS 125 from the very early stages. Our GS 125 is from the fifth year of production and is in excellent condition.
